Structure

Mandarin and Portuguese are very different languages, which adds difficulties to all speakers of Mandarin who currently reside in Portugal and wish to learn Portuguese. This is especially important as having a basic knowledge of the language is one of the requirements to be awarded a Residency Permit, pursuant legislation in force. Considering that you can prove knowledge of the language via a certificate issued by a private teaching institution, completing this program can represent a first step to acquire that knowledge and have a certificate that evidences those linguistic skills. Besides classes on Portuguese language, participants will have classes on Portuguese the system on the legal system).
