Structure

Accompanying the changes that the traditional branches have undergone in recent years and, especially in recent months, it presents a complete training offer aimed at understanding change and economic recovery.

Corporate Law is the branch of Law related to the study of commercial companies (among which private limited-liability and limited liability companies and limited liability companies, among others, stand out).

As commercial companies are the main economic agents under private law, and taking into account the profound technological and computer revolution, which was accentuated with the progression of artificial intelligence and robotics in the last decade, it is pertinent to monitor initiatives and innovation the business fabric, as well as its contribution to progress.

The course, taught in distance learning (EaD), presents a program of excellence, taught by a specialized faculty, who, through synchronous classes, will deepen the fundamental legal and corporate matters, in a context of market competition, having in account the irrefutable demands of social justice.

In the Post-Graduate in Corporate Law, practical matters will be taught, with a focus on the partners and shareholders of these legal entities, including changes in control and participation, as well as the matter of responsibility of managers, corporate conflicts and others events of everyday society that have become denser with the paradigm of digital transformation.
