

POST-GRADUATION

Security Management

2022/2023

20th edition

Objectives

The Post-Graduation in Security Management aims to provide students with skills needed in security management, at different levels and in different activities, as well as provide an opportunity for students to further their knowledge in managing security resources so as to use them to their full potential.

For the convenience and safety of students, classes are taught in person, but at a distance. If conditions allow, visits are carried out at the sites and practical exercises will be carried out in the classroom.

Who should attend

Those who hold or aim to hold a position in Private Security or a similar area, particularly those holding or aiming to hold the position of security director, security liaison officer and/or contact person for the infrastructure of critical infrastructure operators, those responsible for self-protection services, financial institutions, companies managing large commercial areas, use of cannabis for medicinal purposes, locations with spaces for dancing, as well as security managers for sports events and those aiming to become trainers in private security.
